The cost of attending school still climbing

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

It will cost college students in the valley more to attend school this academic year than it did in 1981-82.

Increases in fees for tuition, room, board and miscellaneous charges at local colleges are about the same as the national averages, a recent survey indicated.

The total cost of attending college this fall will rise about 11 percent for resident students. This is the same hike rate as 1981-82, according to the College Board, a non-profit educational association headquartered in New York City.

Students attending public two-year and four-year colleges in California still pay less for their education than students attending similar colleges in other states, the survey indicated. Tuition is not charged California residents who attend community colleges such as Mt. San Antonio, Citrus and Chaffey, state colleges and universities such as Cal Poly Pomona, or University of California campuses such as UC Riverside.

But a number of fees and special charges are made to defray the costs of education at these schools.

For the first time, Mt. San Antonio College will charge full-time students $10 per semester for parking. A 50-cent parking fee will be charged for those occasionally parking on the campus.

Mt. San Antonio College has increased its health fee from $5 to $7.

Jim Albanese, a Mt. San Antonio College vice president, said it costs the average full-time student about $100 a semester — or $200 for the academic year — for student fees and books at the community college.

Since the parking fee was not charged in the past and the health fee has increased, this means about a 10 percent increase.

The College Board Cost Book, to be published Sept. 1, lists the national costs for commuter students attending two-year public or community colleges as about $3,176 a year.

Mt. San Antonio College has charged fees for a number of non-credit classes for many years. As the result of recently announced budget cuts by the California Community Colleges board, some classes previously provided free will now be offered for a fee or cancelled.

Similar program changes and fee rates are being instituted at Citrus and Chaffey colleges.

Cal Poly Pomona and all other schools in the California State University and Colleges system will institute this year a fee approved this

All full-time students will be charged an additional $50 per quarter — or $150 per academic year — in addition to other fee increases. Students carrying less than six units will pay $16 per quarter.

This is above existing fees for units taken, student activity charges and material fees.

The Cal Poly parking fee was increased from $10 to $15 during the 1981-82 academic year. The student body voted this year a $3-per-quarter additional student fee to help defray costs of the athletic program.

Other increases include application fees, from $25 to $30; late charge fees, from $20 to $25; and transcript fees, from $2 to $4.

A college spokesman said the average commuting student at the college pays between $430 and $450 per year at Cal Poly. This is about half the national average of $979 in tuition and fees at four-year public colleges.

Across the nation, total costs for enrolling in a four-year private college or university will average about $7,475. This is up 11.1 percent over 1981-82.

All private colleges surveyed in the valley have increased costs for tuition, board and room and other charges for the 1982-83 school year.

Officials of the University of La Verne said tuition and room and board have increased about 10 percent. But student fees have remained about the same.

Tuition for 1982-83 is $4,950 for a full-time undergraduate student. This compares to $4,500 for the past year. Rooms vary from $990 to $1,400 and meals from $1,300 to $1,500. The costs depends on various plans offered the students. Student fees are $208 per year.

At Azusa Pacific University, tuition has increased to $4,312 this fall. This compares to $3,850 for the 1981-82 academic year.

Room and board has increased slightly, an admissions officer said. Student fees have risen just $1, to $34 a year.

The Claremont Graduate School has increased its tuition by $750 per year to $5,750. Fees for board and room have increased about 10 percent, a spokesman said. Student service fees were hiked from $50 last year to $60 this fall.

Tuition at Pomona College this year will be $7,200 with another $2,385 for board and room on campus. Tuition last year was $6,250. Student activity fees were hiked from $172 last year to $190.

Tuition at Claremont McKenna College is $7,200 this year. This compares to $6,400 in 1981-82. An admissions officer said total costs for a year at CMC, including books and personal expenses, are $9,876.

Kathleen Brouder, associate director of the College Scholarship Service and author of the "College Cost Book," said many colleges have had to increase fees this year since they have deferred costs such as plant maintenance and major increases in faculty and administration salaries for several years in an effort to counteract inflation.

She said most college costs have risen at a slower rate than the cost of living, as reflected by the Consumer Price Index.

Brouder also noted that many colleges are instituting new programs designed to assist hard-pressed families in meeting the costs of education. Many — including those in the valley — have earmarked some tuition revenues for student financial aid in anticipation of declining federal student aid resources.

She said an estimated $14 billion will still be available this year from all sources to help families meet college costs. She also stressed that students can find aid by investigating alternatives by knowing what is expected of them.

Information and advice on seeking financial aid is available from high school guidance counselors and at colleges.

All valley colleges report that increased costs have not reduced the number of applicants.

Upland to charge for excessive false alarms

By ANDREA ADELSON
Staff Writer

False alarms may be blamed on the wind, power outages, a careless employee, forgetful homeowner or faulty wiring.

Whatever the cause, Upland police want to decrease the 1,448 false alarms their officers responded to in 1981, consuming 770 man-hours and costing about $40,000 last year.

Businesses and residences are going to start paying a penalty after the fourth accidental set off in any one year, with the unanimous adoption of an ordinance Monday night by Upland's City Council that authorizes the fines.

A $25 fee will be assessed after the fourth alarm, doubling for the fifth, and quadrupling after the sixth, according to the ordinance. The police chief may consider revoking the permit of any one of 865 alarms within the city set off falsely seven or more times within any consecutive 365-day period.

Mayor John E. McCarthy said the number of habitual offenders is a "small minority. The only other alternative is to suspend the alarm and leave (the building or home) unprotected."

Besides consuming from 30 to 60 minutes of officer time to make a safety check of each alarm call, police regard false alarms for robbery and burglary-in-progress calls as potentially dangerous.

"These officers know from experience that the majority of these alarms are false. They cannot help but anticipate this unfortunate fact. The sense of urgency ... is lost," according to a report submitted to the council by Capt. Gary S. Hart.

Burglar and robbery alarm systems operating in the city increased by 20 percent in 1981, with 150 new permits issued last year, the report said.

Police receive the majority of alarm reports from the 10 alarm companies that operate within the city. Most residential burglary alarms are audible. Liquor stores and banks, where a high incidence of robbery occurs, are equipped with silent alarms that register directly within the police station. Upland has 43, Hart said.

In the past three years as the number of commercial and residential alarm systems has escalated — coinciding with more aggressive marketing by the alarm industry and growing public awareness of the crime rate — police note a similar increase in the number of false alarms.

A similar Upland ordinance adopted four years ago allowed police to put habitually defective alarm systems on probationary status, requiring an employee to check out his own building before police respond when an alarm company reports entry has been made.

In one incident a year ago, an owner surprised a burglary in progress. "That got his attention," Hart said. The building owner ripped out his antiquated system and revamped it.

Upland police report 560 residential and commercial burglaries and 45 robberies so far in 1982.

Requiring alarm offenders to pay for extra service is an idea used by other surrounding cities, but Hart says fines have not made much of a dent in the number of bad calls.

Jacques Sopkin, owner of Mijac Alarm Co. of Upland, made only minor objections to the new law.

Sopkin, who said his firm has 6,000 alarm customers in the West Valley, 1,000 of those in Upland, told the council people who install their own alarms and neglect servicing the systems produce most alarms for fictional break-ins and non-existent hold ups.

He said that the average $2,400 loss of property in a residential burglary more than offsets the $30 estimated cost of having an officer respond to a false alarm call, citing a survey conducted by the Western Burglar Alarm Association.

YTS to begin receiving young state prison inmates in October

By RICHARD GRAY
Staff Writer

The Youth Training School in Chino will begin receiving young adult inmates formally sentenced to state prison in early or mid-October, state officials predicted Monday.

California Youth Authority officials met Monday to begin planning how and when the young adult prisoners will be transferred out of, or in to, the CYA facility in Chino, said George Roberts, CYA's deputy chief.

"Maybe in early October we may send some (adult inmates) to CYA," Roberts said. "No mass movement is planned in the next week or two."

Those sentenced to state prison who are placed at the Youth Training School may spend as much as two years of their sentences at the Youth Training School while two state penal agencies endeavor to swap buildings, Roberts said.

With the tough new sentencing laws of Proposition 8, state officials are considering trading the 1,200-bed CYA facility for the nearby 400-bed East building of the California Institution for Men (CIM) at Chino.

The new sentencing laws will mean fewer young offenders will be committed to CYA and more will be ordered to serve their time in state prisons, which are now overcrowded.

If the two state agencies swap buildings, the CYA facility will hold as many as 2,400 state prisoners, said Phil Guthrie, spokesman for the California Department of Corrections.

That number will increase CIM's inmate population by about 50 percent, Guthrie said.

Those prisoners will be young offenders, usually between the ages of 18 and 21, convicted of serious felonies who would have been committed to CYA under old sentencing laws, Roberts said.

CYA expects Proposition 8's tough sentencing laws to reduce its inmate population in Chino from 1,200 to 400, said Art German, CYA's spokesman.

The planned building swap must be approved by the governor and the state Legislature because both buildings would need improvements and CYA's facility would need greater security devices and measures, Guthrie said.

Although incarcerated at the Youth Training School, the inmates will be in the formal custody of the California Department of Corrections, Roberts said.

Consciousness raising groups to be formed

The Pomona Valley Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) will sponsor two 10-week Consciousness Raising groups beginning this week and the first week of October.

A Wednesday evening group began last night from 7 to 9 in La Verne, while the Tuesday evening group starts Oct. 5 from 7 to 9 in Upland.

Small groups of women will meet for two hours each week for 10 weeks with two facilitators, who will help participants explore personal issues and social conditioning, which will lead to a heightened awareness of women's position in society and how women can adapt to the changing roles of women.

No special education or previous experience is required, and there is no fee, although donations are accepted. For more information on tonight's session, call 599-0298. For more information about the Tuesday group, call 624-7127 or 621-3456.

For more information about the Pomona Valley Chapter of NOW or any of its activities, call 624-5388.

Supervisors OK lease of airport hangars

The county Board of Supervisors has approved a 20-year lease at Chino Airport for a firm to build two hangars where old military planes will be restored.

Military Aircraft Restoration Corp., a division of Specialty Restaurants, won approval Monday for the lease agreement, pending completion of option provisions.

Phil Lock, division chief of county airport services, said each hangar will be about 10,000 square feet. Yesterday's Air Force was a project started by a high-ranking executive of the restaurant company, he added. The lease calls for payment of $1,800 to purchase the option, $1,350 for the first three months' rent during construction and $900 a month for rent thereafter.

Rent increases every five years are tied to increases in the Consumer Price Index. The 20-year lease has a five-year option for renewal.

During the 80-day option period, construction plans are subject to approval by the county Planning Department and Airport Development Review Committee.

R. Cucamonga refuse rates will increase

Increasing dump fees will push Rancho Cucamonga's collection rates up 40 cents a month beginning Oct. 1.

In granting the increase Wednesday night, the City Council was understandably nervous about the public's reaction to the hike — a rate increase two years ago incited a public outcry and prompted a suit being filed against the city by two trash collection companies.

Things have since quieted down (the suit was eventually dropped) but the sting was still apparent Wednesday.

Councilman Chuck Buquet, who was not on the council when the 1980 rate was approved, felt there had not been enough time for the council and the public to discuss a new rate.

"Why do we only have one meeting to talk about this?" added Councilman Jim Frost who was on the council in 1980.

There are some differences between the 1980 rate hike and the increases sought by Yukon and Rancho disposal companies this year.

Ed Burr, president of Rancho Disposal, said the new rate is directly attributable to county dumping fees which were raised 16.7 percent July 1.

"This (proposal) is a modest increase and the biggest part of it goes to our dumping costs," Burr said.

New monthly rates will be $6.45 for residents south of Banyan; $7.15 for those above Banyan; and $5.30 for senior citizens.

Joe Avakian, owner of Yukon, said the 1980 increase also carried with it a rider that called for exclusive pickup territories.

People became upset with that provision, Avakian noted, because it took away their ability to pick which company they wanted to use.

Buquet, who voted against the increase, wanted the matter continued to allow for more discussion.

But Avakian and Burr said a delay could stir up trouble with the public.

Because the companies bill on a quarterly basis, the increase could not go into effect until January if delayed, Burr said.

If that happens, he added, the increase would be higher.

In addition, future rates will be determined in June instead of October.

Mayor Jon Mikels figured a six-month interlude between increases would ignite further public outcry.

Although the council eventually passed the 1982-83 increase, there were some changes in the proposal.

"I've no doubt you need a rate increase," said Councilman Richard Dahl. "But using a percentage becomes unfair for certain parts of the city."

Dahl opposed an across-the-board 6.6 percent increase because it would prompt rates north of Banyan Street to go up 45 cents with rates below Banyan being increased by 40 cents.

Trash companies have defended the higher rate saying streets above Banyan are steeper and farther away from the dump site.

The council agreed with Dahl and kept the rate increase to 40 cents for all city residents except senior citizens who will see their monthly bills increase 35 cents.

Montclair approves contract for police dog use in Ontario

By STEVE SCAUZILLO
Staff Writer

Montclair Police Department is willing to share its K-9 patrol with neighboring Ontario for a price — $35 an hour.

An agreement worked out between the two cities was ratified unanimously by Montclair's City Council Monday night and will soon be in the hands of the Ontario City Council.

Originally, the contract fee was set at $25 an hour but that was raised by $10 Monday night by the council.

For Ontario, the contract would provide a service that couldn't make its way into this year's city budget.

"We had requested monies in the 1982-83 budget to create our own canine unit," said Police Chief Lee Kolbrek. However, the council in May decided it would be too expensive. Staff was asked to look into using Montclair's.

Mike Milhiser, Montclair's city administrator, said the contract would work very much like Ontario's bomb squad program, which Montclair contracts for $2,500 per year.

"It's the same concept. They use a service and we'll bill them for it," Milhiser explained.

Since the inception of the Montclair Canine Unit last December, Ontario has used the officers and the dogs during special circumstances.

The sniffing dogs cut down on manpower during searches for burglars who may be hiding in large warehouses, Kolbrek explained.

He added that his department had been satisfied with the service during the few times they've been used in Ontario.

Montclair Police Chief Roger Moulton would like to extend the contract to other neighboring West Valley cities.

"It certainly is beneficial for the city and offsets some of our costs to have the Canine Unit."

The canine team consists of Officer Wes Fowler and Mike Emery and two police dogs: Byrger, a black Bouvier des Flandres and a German Shepherd named Mike.

Moulton is satisfied with the program and the contracting out of the team so the dogs can be kept busy.

"The need is there. It just doesn't come up that frequently," Moulton said.

He is not worried about a conflict between the two departments asking for use at the same time. "The likelihood they'll be calling for the service when we are using them is rather slim," Moulton said.

One dog can be dispatched to each call if that situation were to arise.

The contract says that if either canine officer is needed during off-hours, an additional 20 cents per mile will be charged to the user.

La Bounty calls on faculty, staff to help

If quality education is to continue, faculty and staff members will need to help raise funds, Cal Poly President Hugh O. La Bounty said during the university's opening convocation Monday.

The president challenged the faculty to find new sources of funding from donors in the business community or among the alumni and friends.

The keynote convocation speaker, Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-Santa Clara County, missed the program when his plane was grounded in San Jose with mechanical problems.

In his talk, La Bounty said: "The university especially needs financial help if it is to continue in the 1980s that quality education it has sustained over the decades," La Bounty added. "That help must come from us."

La Bounty said the university's budget for this fiscal year is roughly equivalent to last year, but the school is accepting the equivalent of an additional 200 full-time students.

"In addition, the travel budget has been reduced by 25 percent and reductions have been made in the number of new library volumes and custodial positions. Moreover, no cost-of-living increase was allocated," he stated.

"Many friends in the private sector don't understand our financial dilemma," the president noted.

La Bounty said last year the faculty, staff and students, in a collective effort, raised $1.6 million from private sources.

Half was in cash and the rest in gift in-kind, he explained.

"All institutions of higher learning are experiencing the dual problem of rising expectations and diminishing resources," continued La Bounty. "The competition for non-public resources is intensifying and will continue to do so."

He said a recent national study has concluded that over 46 percent of the support for private colleges and universities comes from public sources.

Classes begin Thursday at the university. This year, 16,400 students are enrolled.

Our Patients Ask...

My son away at college writes that he has trench mouth. What is it and what should he do about it?

Trench mouth is a sudden, severe infection of the gums. It often involves bleeding, pain, foul mouth odor and a blunting of the triangular area of gum tissue between the teeth. Trench mouth is associated with stress. In fact, it gets its name because it was common among soldiers occupying trenches during World War I. Today, it is fairly common among college students at exam time, particularly if the students have let down in their regular brushing and flossing routines. Treatment usually consists of a thorough, professional cleaning of the teeth, antibiotics and mouth rinsing with a hydrogen peroxide solution. Usually, the gums will be healthy again within a few weeks.

According to Robert Sawicky, Ph.D., Upland doctor of clinical psychology and the seminar's organizer, every emotional crisis presents both a danger and an opportunity. The danger is that we will continue to do whatever created the crisis. The opportunity is to learn from our experience and to grow in new and positive directions.

Other topics to be considered during the seminar include: "Why the Relationship Failed" and "Preparing to Love Again."

For more information and to register, call Sawicky at 946-4000.

Fire board to act on reorganization plan

By JIM MARXEN
Staff Writer

Foothill Fire Protection District's board of directors will meet Wednesday afternoon to implement changes in the district's fire prevention bureau.

But an agreement reached in principle last week between the firefighter's association and the board apparently will have only one signature on it. The association has reportedly pulled its support for the document after changes were made in its wording this week.

Wednesday's meeting will take place at 5:30 in district headquarters, 6623 Amethyst St., Rancho Cucamonga.

A week ago, the board announced it had come to a verbal agreement with the California State Firemen's Association over the restructuring of fire prevention duties.

One member of the bureau is scheduled to go back into firefighting ranks, the other will lose her fire safety status and benefits but would remain in the restructured bureau.

The agreement was also reportedly designed to protect firefighters who might get "bumped" as a result of the reorganization and insure that any future reorganizations affecting firefighters would be discussed with the association in advance.

Reorganization of the bureau was approved without the association's prior knowledge.

Neither employee affected has agreed to changes affecting their jobs.

Another bone of contention is whether a public hearing should be held on the issue of reorganization.

Board President Daniel Richards said Wednesday's meeting was not called to gather public testimony on the topic.

"There will be no hearing," he said. "There is never a hearing on personnel matters ... our legal counsel said this is the way to handle it."

Public testimony on the subject was throttled at last week's meeting when a crowd supporting the employees attempted to speak.

Board member John Lyons says he hopes to open Wednesday's meeting to the public.

"I don't see how we could neglect to open it again if the people come to speak," Lyons said. "We're taking service away from the community."

Last Friday, Lyons sent a letter to Richards asking that a meeting be called for a public hearing on reorganization.

His request was rejected by Richards and fellow board members Steve Wheatley and Paul Pope.

"He couldn't get a majority of the board to go along with it," Richards said. "He wanted to do it as usual with two days notice."

Richards said he feels there is a "silent majority" in the community who support the reorganization which he feels will increase services to the community.

"They're saying, 'we're not rabble rousers or meeting attenders and we like what you guys are doing.'"

He added that a public hearing with both sides represented is being contemplated.

As for Wednesday's meeting, Lyons said it is not what he asked for nor was he ever polled to see if he supported what was finally agreed upon.

Some reports indicated the purpose of Wednesday's meeting was decided in an afternoon session attended by Wheatley, Pope and Chief Richard Feuerstein with Richards on a speaker telephone. Richards denied any speaker phone conversation took place.

Pope, a member of the board's negotiating team, agreed that no decision regarding a meeting was made with all three board members at once.

"There was a three-way conversation on reading to Dan (Richards) some wording that had been hammered out," he said. "Richards came to the station but I left the meeting and went outside. We were guarding against having more than two board members present."

Decisions reached in concert by three or more members of the board outside a public meeting or official closed session would constitute a violation of the Ralph M. Brown (Open Public Meeting) Act.

Feuerstein said the wording concerned what would appear on the typed agenda, but that the group did not make a decision on whether to hold a meeting at that time.

"The presiding officer can call a meeting," Feuerstein said. "In this case the meeting was called at the request of the president through a request from the personnel committee."

Lyons and Amodt, he noted did not have to be contacted in this instance.

Pete Amodt, the only board member to change his stand on the reorganization (he now opposes the idea after initially giving it his approval) said he was not polled either.

As for the three clerical workers affected by the Aug. 23 reorganization, their positions will remain in effect until meet and confer sessions are completed.

Valley scout leader loses battle with death

A valley scout leader died this month but his ideals live on through the inspiration and leadership offered to hundreds of boys and young men.

Daniel Bocksberger died of cancer Sept. 7 at the age of 42. In spite of intense pain, he was still directing Boy Scout activities from his bed at the UCLA Medical Center until a week before his death.

Officials of the Old Baldy Council, Boys Scouts of America, have established a Dan Bocksberger Memorial Fund to restore the original ranch house at the scout's Holcomb Valley Ranch in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Affectionately known as "Mr. Box" by the many Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts he worked with, Mr. Bocksberger became deeply involved as he took over a troop of youths in South Pomona in 1971 when no leader was available.

His wife Jean said the group, Troop 109, eventually produced six Eagle Scouts, including the first black Eagle Scout honored in the Old Baldy Council.

"But his real love was the younger Cubs," Mrs. Bocksberger said. "He felt that if a boy was stimulated early he would maintain his interest and goals as he grew up."

He was assistant cubmaster at Roosevelt School in Pomona many years.

George Janice, Sunset District executive, said: "Dan was really the chief motivator in the district. He had a way of getting everyone working for the same cause."

Barbara Wood, district training chairman and a registered nurse, reported: "The boys came first with him. He wanted the best possible program for youth."

"Even during the weeks before his death, he directed a camporee program from his hospital bed. When his strength permitted, he went to the Firestone Boy Scout Reserve and I changed his dressings so he could carry out the programs."

In May, while ill, he was still raising money to send scouts from a new troop to resident camp. The youths cleaned up a vacant Pomona railroad depot for a trucking company, collected glass, cans and paper for recycling, participated in breakfasts and held a rummage sale so that all eight boys had their way paid to camp, said Janice.

Born in New York City, Mr. Bocksberger moved to Chino as an infant and was a member of Boy Scout Troop 1 as a youth.

While heading Cub and Boy Scout troops and being active on the district level, Mr. Bocksberger was also involved in other youth programs.

His wife reported that "Dan was wrapped up in youth. They were always welcome to our house."

He served as esident of the Ganesha High School Band Boosters. He managed a teen-age jazz band from 1976-78.

"The band played at cast parties and various places until the members all left for college," Mrs. Bocksberger noted.

Mr. Bocksberger was a stage hand working with International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees for 16 years. He started in television and was working in live theater when cancer struck.

In August 1981, a cancerous mole was discovered and he was referred to UCLA Medical Center. Surgery was done in September. By March, the cancer reappeared and rapidly spread throughout his body.

Mr. Bocksberger was the first patient to undergo a new irradiation of the thymus gland to reduce pain between the shoulder and waist, his wife reported.

Just six days before his death, Mr. Bocksberger chided an adult scouting volunteer whose patches were placed incorrectly on his uniform, Mrs. Wood recalled.

His stay in the hospital was brightened by visits from many former scouts, Mrs. Bocksberger added. A Cub group went one step further. They wrote President Ronald Reagan about "their wonderful leader." The president called the hospital this week, unaware that Mr. Box was dead.

"We've been told we'll hear from the president," Mrs. Bocksberger added.

At his request, scouts conducted Mr. Bocksberger's funeral. Eagle Scouts formed an honor guard as staff and active volunteers served as pallbearers and gave eulogies.

Also at his request, Mr. Bocksberger's eyes were donated to the Jules Stein Eye Bank at UCLA.

"Dan wanted the ranch house at the camp to be a working museum where youths could learn about early pioneers and their way of life," Janice said.

The family lived in Pomona until 4½ years ago when they moved to Upland. The children are Cathleen McMurrin, 22, of Anaheim Hills; Eric, 20, a Marine Reserve; David, 18, who has just joined the Army; and Kirk, 15, at home.

Contributions are already starting to swell the memorial fund. Persons interested in participating may send donations to the Old Baldy Boy Scout office, 120 W. San Jose Ave., Claremont, 91711, or call 626-3551.

Dinner to honor Claremont residents

As a part of Claremont's 75th birthday celebration, longtime residents will be honored at a dinner on Oct. 6 in the refectory of the Claremont Church of Christ, Congregational.

People who have lived in the city 30 years or longer are asked to make reservations by Saturday so they may be given priority in the limited seating available.

The remaining space will be opened to other residents after that date, said Stan Larson, master of ceremonies.

The Old-Timers Dinner will be at 7 p.m. with a social hour starting at 6:30 p.m.

The program will include a fashion show of clothing from the past. This will be coordinated by Hester Powell of Claremont. Photographs of early Claremont will be on display.

Co-chairmen for the dinner are Ray Fowler and Margaret Cooke. The cost is $7.50 per person. For reservations, persons may contact call Mrs. Cooke at 654 Northwest Drive., Claremont. Her telephone number is 626-0246.

Officials told to complete negotiations

In a move to stave off closure of the Pomona Valley Mental Health Center, the Tri-City Mental Health Authority governing board Monday, in a 3-2 vote, ordered officials to complete negotiations with Casa Colina Corp. for management of the center.

But future of the mental health facility at 1149 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, is still uncertain as terms of a contract between the two agencies have not been finalized.

Monday's action, which came under pressure of a Sept. 30 cutoff date for cash flow advancement to the center from the city of Pomona, sparked disagreement from board member Eleanor Cohen and Terry Fitzgerald, acting board member.

Both urged continued negotiations with both Casa Colina and ENKI Health and Research Systems, which also has agreed to contract for administrative service and assumption of Tri-City's cash flow problem.

Cohen and Fitzgerald echoed concerns expressed by Sally Seven, a member of the agency's advisory committee. "We have no information and feel uncomfortable about a decision when the shape of the agreement is not known," Mrs. Seven said. "Our concern is that the community's interests are maintained."

Mrs. Seven said the committee champions "local control" of the agency which is operated under a joint-powers agreement signed by Pomona, Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas in the late 1960s. "We want to be sure the same clientele is served (if Casa Colina takes over management of the center)," she declared.

Calling for a 30-day delay of the decision, Mrs. Seven asked the board to "buy us time" for review of "the shape of the agreement."

Both Cohen and Fitzgerald declared they had insufficient information to make a decision. They were adamant in their contention that both possibilities should be explored.

But Pomona Councilman E.J. Gaulding, who sits on the agency board, warned that his city would likely not consider any "long extension" of cash flow advancement for agency operations. "If there is no agreement by Sept. 30, Tri-City will be in trouble with Pomona," he warned.

Further, he said, "none of the rules will be changed." Casa Colina will assume responsibility for cash flow and administrative operations, but the governing board will continue to set policy. The advisory board also will continue its function as

Excursion to San Diego planned

The San Dimas Parks and Recreation Department has announced that it will conduct an "Adults Only" excursion to San Diego to visit Seaport Village and Old Town, on Thursday, Oct. 7.

The bus will leave City Hall at 9:30 a.m. and return to the same location at approximately 6 p.m. The $12.50 fee covers the transportation on a luxury-liner bus.

Registrations may be made Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the San Dimas City Hall, 245 E. Bonita Ave.

Damien day at the races to be held

Saint Monica's Guild of Damien High School in La Verne is sponsoring "Damien Day at the Races" on Saturday, Oct. 2 at the Santa Anita Race Track in Arcadia.

The Club House Patio has been reserved and a lunch will be served at noon. Post time for the first race is at 1 p.m.

Parking is available at the Club House Entrance on Huntington Drive. Gates open at 11.

There are a limited number of tickets available. Donation is $14 per person, which includes admission and buffet. Tickets may be obtained by calling Jeanne Hester 599-8565 or Sandy Probst (213) 966-1225.

This event is open to the public.

mandated by the state, he added.

Casa Colina, Gaulding explained, would provide expertise in collection of funding allocated to Tri-City by the county and state. The corporation will be "a tremendous asset" to Tri-City because of its image and expertise, he added.

Pomona Councilman Clay Bryant, board chairman, agreed that "all along we haven't had necessary information; and now we're in a crisis situation."

The board directed Todd Burley, director of the mental health center, to advise board members of terms of the contract as they become available. It gave the director permission to pursue a contract with ENKI should negotiations with Casa Colina falter.

Burley and the governing board have been seeking methods to keep the facility open since last June when the Pomona City Council informed the agency the city could no longer supply cash advancements for agency operations.

In the past cash advancements were repaid with funds allocated to the agency by the state. However, these funds were often paid as late as five months after billings.

Burley reported Monday that the state Legislature has approved a bill calling for advance payments to Tri-City on a quarterly basis. The bill is expected to be approved by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. This will reduce the necessary cash advancements to about $250,000, he said.

McCarthy says he supports ERA movement

While he voted against the Equal Rights Amendment 10 years ago, Assemblyman Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco, says he now supports the ERA movement more than the female he's running against for state lieutenant governor.

Speaking Friday noon at Claremont McKenna College, McCarthy said major issues in the November election campaign include equal rights, the economy and the recent attack on the nation's judicial system by Republican Pete Wilson.

McCarthy, 51, a 14-year Assembly veteran who served six years as Assembly speaker, is running for the state post against Carol Hallett, Republican assemblywoman who is a former minority floor leader.

"Carol Hallett is hostile to women's right," McCarthy said. "She hides behind some vague constitutionality guise."

"I don't understand the frequent male assumption that allowing women greater access to education and business opportunities is a threat to the family unit," he said. McCarthy added that one of his daughters is a teacher and the second has just passed the bar examinations.

"We need to break through the artificial barriers that have trapped women," added McCarthy. "However, Hallett has never authored a single bill to support women."

McCarthy blasted San Diego Mayor Wilson, running for U.S. Senate against Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., for his statement this week that U.S. Supreme Court justices should be elected.

"That's the most shocking proposal I've heard in this entire campaign," McCarthy said. "I don't know what's happened to Wilson. He's just turned himself inside out."

In discussing the economy, McCarthy said: "The economic future is great if we don't lose faith in ourselves."

"The economy obviously is now in deep trouble. The present policies are not working because they are contradictory."

McCarthy said the Democrats should have supported President Reagan earlier when he began cutting the budget. He cited the contradictions as attempts to cut the budget at the same time as promoting a doubling of defense spending.

"Fifty-six percent of the borrowing in this nation is by the government," McCarthy said. "That leaves little money left for private borrowing. This results in high interest rates."

McCarthy said he supported legislation which eliminated business inventory taxes, amended state inheritance tax laws and cut personal income taxes.

"The future of the state requires aggressive partnerships between political, economic and academic leadership," McCarthy noted. "The international trade future is marvelous. But we need to develop transportation systems, increase technological jobs and provide educational opportunities to keep talent in the state."

McCarthy said it's important to help stabilize the economy of Mexico to prevent massive influxes of unskilled and uneducated aliens into this country.

"I don't want this country to change its character of being open to others. But first we must provide opportunities for people who already are here," he said. "Those aliens who have lived in this country for years cannot be deported en masse."

Council delays decision on redevelopment

A plan to spur redevelopment of blighted areas at Arrow Highway and Towne Avenue was stalled Monday as the City Council deadlocked 2-2 on a motion to acquire a $1.5 million federal loan for the project.

Councilmen agreed to reconsider Sept. 27 a proposal to amend a loan application originally submitted to the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development for acquisition of the Fox Theater on Third Street.

Under federal guidelines, the council has until Sept. 30 to submit other projects eligible for the loan under the Section 108 loan program. The federal agency approved the loan for purchase of the theater, but councilmen later rejected a plan to acquire and rehabilitate the old movie house.

Sanford Sorensen, community development director, said the staff suggested amending the loan application because of council and resident interest in the revitalization of blighted properties in the Arrow-Towne Redevelopment Project Area.

He reported negotiations have been proceeding with Essex Investment Inc., a firm which currently has entered into escrow on three of the four major sites at the Arrow-Towne intersection.

Christopher Wheeler, president of Essex, has committed the firm to assign its positions in escrow to Pomona to enable the city to acquire all necessary properties. In exchange for the "exclusive right" to develop, the firm would then assume all costs of the transaction, including payments of the government loan plus 12 percent interest.

This would be advantageous to the city which would be required to pay just 10.5 percent interest to the federal government, officials said.

But the plan elicited opposition from one resident who claimed the issue was "cut and dried" even though area residents prefer another developer, Hi-Land Investment Co.

Lula Solomon claimed residents had been misinformed July 12 when they were told several properties were "owned" by Essex and that private funds would be used for development of the area.

In fact, she said, title is still invested in the original owners and Wheeler now plans to use public funds. "Someone is not telling the truth," she added.

Saying he resents inferences of "skulduggery," Councilman E.J. Gaubling explained that Essex has two properties in escrow and thus "effectively has control."

William Grand, a representative of Central Baptist Church — owner of the Western Christian Academy at the southeast corner of Towne and Arrow — confirmed the church has had a contractual agreement with Essex for 90 days. Wheeler is "negotiating in good faith," he declared.

Wheeler said he had, indeed, planned to use private financing, but learned that the project could be financed with federal monies to benefit both the city and the development firm.

The plan drew opposition from Councilman Stan Selby who said approval of the proposal constituted "putting the cart before the horse" because a specific redevelopment plan for the area has not yet been approved.

Wheeler did submit site plans Monday for improvements to the southeast and southwest corners of the Towne-Arrow intersection.

Selby, champion of the Fox Theater project, claimed the loan monies were intended for the revitalization of the downtown core. It "sticks in my craw" that (Essex) first proposed to use private funds and now wants use of public monies, he said.

"There is no more visible blighted area in our town than (the intersection) of Third Street and Garey Avenue," he declared.

Councilman Clay Bryant argued that Essex is essentially using private funds to repay the government loan. There has been a need for a market and shopping center in the Arrow-Towne area for the past 12 years, he said.

Further, Bryant explained, future Community Development Block Grant monies will be used to secure the loan.

Pomona seniors enjoy new city service center

Francisco and Maria Ortega of Pomona have gained "a new lease on life" at the new senior center operated by the Senior Citizens Activities and Meals Program at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

The white-haired Ortega speaks enthusiastically of "the new experience," while his smiling wife claims she no longer is a "slave to the ironing board."

The Ortegas now have "a place to go" where they can find the warmth of companionship with others and enjoy a nutritious lunch prepared by program workers.

The South Pomona site, opened at dedication ceremonies last week, replaces the center formerly operated at Westmont Park.

Staff members decided to open the new facility despite a reduction in funding because of the need for a center in the area, said Sharron Bentley, project director.

Pam Escoto, site director, said the reason for transferring sites was twofold — the need to serve a larger number of people (average attendance at Westmont was about 15 per day) and the need to reach more of the city's minority population.

To make the transfer possible, Mrs. Escoto has been doubling as site director and program director for all the city's nutrition sites.

During the first week, attendance at Sacred Heart Catholic Church increased by about 10 persons per day.

In light of continuing budgetary constraints, workers and participants plan "to pitch in" to keep the program operating. Officials said $15,000 must be raised to subsidize meals at current levels. Another $5,800 is needed to hire a fourth site director.

Maria Louisa Garcia, a program aide hired on a temporary basis, may be without a job Sept. 30 unless federal funding is extended for employees in her position.

It is still uncertain if funds provided for employment training through the National Council on Aging will be extended for employees hired on a temporary basis, Mrs. Bentley explained.

But recognizing the value of the program, Mrs. Garcia said she will continue to work on a volunteer basis if necessary.

Volunteers Sisto and Vicky Alvarez have vowed to participate in fund-raising programs to keep the program alive.

In the past, Alvarez said, some residents were reluctant to participate in the program.

Chinoans assist Ramona students

Parents, teachers, administrators, private clubs, businesses and community residents have joined in Chino to help Ramona Junior High School students repay a $10,000 loan from the school district.

Friends of Ramona Junior High School, a group of residents and businesses, will conduct a flea market on Saturday.

Skateway, a skating rink at 12356 Central Ave., will hold a special fund-raiser Sept. 28. The Chino Lions Club will donate part of the funds from its bluegrass festival on Oct. 2 and 3 to Ramona.

School trustees Lou Moreno and Fred Heene Jr. have donated their board stipends for the month of September to the Ramona cause.

And parents and residents from throughout the city are sending checks payable to the Ramona Junior High School Associated Student Body.

This united effort is in response to nearly $15,000 in funds discovered missing from the school's student body account last spring.

One school official was arrested, another resigned and others have been reprimanded in an investigation involving the missing funds. The district is also seeking recovery of some funds through civil action.

Students received the funds from school dances and fund-raisers such as candy sales, said Moreno. Pending bills include various student expenses such as the purchase of school jackets, he added.

New law cracks down harder on young felons

Legislation by Sen. Ruben S. Ayala, D-32nd District, and signed into law by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., outlines a procedure for handling juvenile offenders and will serve as a pilot project in the state for the next two years.

The bill, SB 105, is to take effect Jan. 1 and extend through Jan. 1, 1985, "to give the juvenile justice system in the state a chance to see what should be done on a permanent basis," Ayala said.

The law may be the forerunner for a restructuring of the juvenile justice system in the state, the senator believes.

SB 105 permits the county district attorney's office to handle the case each time a person 16 years of age or younger is charged with a "serious felony" for the third time.

Under present law, persons 16 years of age and under charged with "serious felonies" are handed directly to the county probation department, regardless of past criminal records.

The probation department then has 21 days in which to make a determination on the handling of the case.

"Serious felonies" covered by the bill exclude drug possession but include murder, rape, kidnapping, arson of an inhabited building, robbery with a weapon, forceful sexual assault, aggravated kidnapping, and various felonious assaults including the discharging of a firearm into a building.

"If a youngster under 16 years of age is charged with one of these, regardless of prior record, he or she goes directly to the district attorney for handling under the new bill," Ayala explained. "Today they go to the probation department."

Ayala said he introduced the bill Jan. 8, 1981, and it was opposed in the Assembly. "One of the chief opponents was Assemblyman Gwen Moore of Los Angeles. She, at one time, was a probation officer and she fought it on the Assembly floor, saying it would do away with the probation department."

"That's not true," said Ayala. "They in the probation departments have got all the work they can do, all they can handle."

"SB 105 covers serious types of felonies and now that individual will go directly to the district attorney's office for review and a determination whether to file."

"The district attorney could return that individual to the probation department if he thought their handling to be in the best interest of the individual involved."

Ayala believes his legislation is "long overdue. If a juvenile has been convicted of two felonies — regardless of their nature — and again is picked up for a felony, I believe he or she should then go directly to the district attorney's office."

"What I'm saying is we've had enough, and we're not going to tolerate any more."

"I think the time has come, is in fact overdue, when we have to get tough. We're not talking about kids who are not adjusted, in need of counseling. We're talking about murderers, kidnappers, rapists."

Ayala said only one senator, Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, voted against SB 105.

"He asked me what we were trying to do to the young people. I invited him to my district to the California Youth Authority to look at these 'darlings,' sometimes 6 feet tall and weighing 200 pounds. You don't dare turn your back on them."

"We're not talking about little darlings in Sunday school. The time has come to have this law. It's a step in the right direction. It may discourage some of the younger element before they get involved past the point of no return," he said.

Ayala said his bill was opposed by the state public defender, California Attorneys for Criminal Justice, the California Probation, Parole and Correctional Association, the Chief Probation Officers, the Fresno Juvenile Justice Commission and "the California Department of Youth Authority."

"That bothers me because these people are here all the time — when they have a riot or something. We're trying to put tools in their hands and they fight it. I don't understand them."

Others in opposition were the State Bar Juvenile Justice Committee and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Ayala said a juvenile judge in San Diego County gave him the outline for the bill which was supported by the California District Attorneys' Association, the County of San Diego, the California Judges Association, the California Juvenile Officers Association, and Los Angeles County.
